ALLEGED EFFORT TO BLOCK FORD BID EXPOSED

Taft Is Scored For His Social Activities

NEBRASKA SENATOR
SAYS CHIEF JUSTICE
CAN'T DINE OUT AND GIVE DUES TO POOR

Advocates Abolition of Judicial System And Raising Power
State Courts

LIFE TENURE DECLARED
BAD FOR THE PEOPLE

Judges Become Indifferent And Makes Some Forget
Common People

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, April 7.—Censoring William Howard Taft, chief justice of the United States supreme court for his social activities among the idle
rich, Senator Norris, of Nebraska, today advocated the abolition of the federal judicial system and conferring of federal jurisdiction on existing
state courts.

Norris declared that "no judge can stick his legs under the table of the idle rich every night and be fit the next day to sit in judgment on those who toil."

The Nebraska senator added that annual pilgrimages to Washington by federal circuit judges, as provided in the Cummins bill, would further weaken the system.

"There is something fundamentally wrong with our judicial system. I have reached the conclusion from my own experience that life tenure of office is not good for the people. While in theory the judge appointed for life is removed from temptation and has nothing but the straight and narrow path to follow, it often means
the security of a life salary and a life
position makes our judges indifferent
and makes some of them forget the
common people."

Norris called attention to the provision in the Cummins bill under which senior judges would be brought once
a year to Washington for conferences with Chief Justice Taft and the attorney general.

"What will these judges do. They will meet the chief justice and will dine every evening. They will be killed with social favoritism before getting down to business, especially as it affects the genial chief justice, who dines out somewhere every night. I do not believe there is any judge who can stick his legs under the table of the idle rich every night and be fit
the next day to sit in judgment on those who toil. Honest though he may be, he cannot get away from the atmosphere that will surround him and 99 times out of 100 it will affect him
and get him in the end."

COMPANY PLANS ROAD TO SHOALS

(Montgomery Bureau,
Albany-Decatur Daily)
MONTGOMERY, Ala., April 7.—
The Muscle Shoals, Birmingham and Pensacola railroad, organized in Florida for the purpose of constructing a road from the Muscle Shoals district to Pensacola, qualified to do business in Alabama by filing a declaration with William P. Cobb, secretary of state, today. The company named Fred S. Ball, Montgomery attorney,
as its agent in Alabama, the certificate showing that the railroad will have a capital of $2,500,000 and the authority to increase this capital to $25,000,000.

The plans of the railroad provide for the construction of 309.41 miles of track within Alabama on its main line
and 29 miles of side track. John T.
Steele, of Buffalo, N. Y., is president of the corporation with H. A. Mandeville, of Elmira, N. Y., as vice president and R. C. Greenway, address not given, as secretary.

NEGRO'S LEG IS FOUND BURIED

The finding of a new made grave
in the vicinity of Austinville late Thursday evening near a negro cem-
tery, was reported to Solicitor Cliff Almon. He ordered an investigation and Coroner F. M. Hamilton repaired to the scene and after excavating to a depth of two feet unearthed a meat
crate containing the leg of a negro man, severed from the limb just below the knee. The authorities are at a complete loss to account for the find, as no clue is possible at this time
to throw any light on the unusual discovery.

The only information the authorities
are in possession of it is stated, has been the statement that residents in that vicinity noticed a car stop at that place some ten days ago and remained there for some time. Whether that incident had anything to do with the burying of the member is entirely conjectural. The limb was not badly decomposed, it is said, conveying the idea that it was deposited there quite recently. At any rate, there is a one legged negro somewhere from some cause; but where; but when; but why?

Horse Or Mule Cannot Be Seized Under Dry Law, High Court Holds

(Montgomery Bureau,
Albany-Decatur Daily)
MONTGOMERY, Ala., April 7.—
A horse or mule caught with liquor on its back is immune
from confiscation under the bone
dry prohibition law. The supreme court Thursday afternoon defined
the rights of horses and mules
not attached to vehicles in a case
from the Madison circuit court
which was started by the solicitor
in an effort to confiscate a mule
because he had been used in transporting liquor.

The bone dry law says any vehicle used in transporting liquor
may be seized, condemned and sold by the state. But this mule was not attached to a vehicle. If he carried liquor at all he carried it on his back. The supreme court's decision was that this would not constitute a case wherein the animal
could be sold.

If the mule had been attached to a vehicle and the vehicle had been condemned, the court's decision pointed out various sections of the bone dry law which showed that vehicles and not animals
were intended to be seized under the bone dry law.

The decision came in the case of Solicitor D. C. Almon versus one black horse, mule and P. T. Dobson, claimant.

Morgan County Physicians Will Establish New Credit List Soon

Following a meeting of the Morgan County Medical society yesterday afternoon, physicians of Morgan
county soon will establish a credit list. The names of citizens will be listed with a credit rating and lists
furnished members of the society.

It is claimed that some members of the general public have not dealt fairly with the physicians in the matter of payment for professional services. It was stated that some persons retained a physician until becoming indebted to him and then shifted

WORK PROBLEM IS NEARER SOLUTION

More encouraging reports have been received during the past ten days by
the president's conference on unemployment, not only as to the improvement in local conditions, but also in the better organized methods adopted
by various communities throughout the United States, to solve their own problems and to meet the new situations brought about by spring. In an official statement, the conference says:
"The upward trend, while not great,
still continues to hold, with the number of jobs available slightly increased,
coupled with a corresponding decrease
in the number of applicants—a most hopeful sign."

Special attention is also drawn to the work done by the churches whose heads have been very energetic during the past month. They have not only secured much employment for the jobless, but also have contributed most liberally to the relief of the needy and distressed.

Mayors are now daily reporting to Arthur Woods, chairman of the emergency committee in Washington,
that the tide has turned towards improvement. Some of the cities which send in clear-cut statements as to their own local improvement are Atlanta, Ga., Auburn, N. Y., Beloit, Wis., Colorado Springs, Colo., Lincoln, Neb.,
Los Angeles, Calif., Nashville, Tenn.,
Pueblo, Colo., Roanoke, Va., Seattle,
Wash., Sheboygan, Wis., Tucson, Ariz., and Wheeling, W. Va.

THOUSANDS ATTEND FIELD DAY PROGRAM HELD IN HARTSELLE BY COUNTY SCHOOLS

Special Train From the Twin Cities Carries Large
Contingent

HUGE PARADE ONE
OF DAY'S FEATURES
Various Athletic Contests Are Being Held Throughout
the Afternoon

Fully five thousand strong the educational forces of the county marched on Hartselle today, taking every outpost without opposition. Early Friday morning the advancing hosts,
represented by the scholarship of the county, began to arrive from the rural districts on bicycles, horse-back, wagons, buggies and cars. At 9:10 a special train from Albany-Decatur augmented the already large number on hand by fully 1,500 more. The delegation from Albany-Decatur was lined up at the station and the march
to the city school, located on the east side of the railroad, was begun. There the other schools of the county were massed ready for the line of march to the Morgan county high school on the west side of town, where the ceremonies of the day took place. The marching hosts were fully a mile long if strung out in march formation. In the march, each school was represented by floats and banners with some descriptive emblem printed thereon.

Everybody seemed to be on hand
except Henry Ford, and he was represented by banners which bore the words: "Henry Ford and Muscle Shoals."

All schools marched in alphabetical order until the high school ground
was reached, when the program for the day was taken up.

At 10:45 in the high school auditorium a declamation, recitation and music contest was held consisting of group one and two in each department from the primary school to the high school. In the high school class rooms at the same hour literary contests were held consisting of spelling,
drawing, arithmetic, sight reading
(new material), writing, composition,
and best poem.

At 1 o'clock a program was held on the high school athletic field for boys,
in which the following events were featured: standing broad jump, for boys under 16; running broad jump, for boys group 1 under 16, group 2 over 16; high jump; pole vault; centipede
race; human wheelbarrow race; hurdle
race; dashes; mile run; relay race;
potato race; hop, 50 yards; throwing
baseball, distance; batting baseball,
distance; throwing football, distance;
kicking football, distance; chinning
bar, and men teachers race.

Girls athletics were held at 2 o'clock
consisting of practically the same features as the boys. Several special features were held during the day,
adding much to the already entertaining program.

The weather was ideal and Superintendent of Education E. L. Hays estimates that the number of visitors today will exceed 5,000. This is by far a larger attendance than previous Field Day meetings held in Hartselle
and is quite gratifying to those who have it in hand as it is an index to the splendid organization the schools
of the county are in.

Lunches were served on the grounds
by the Parent-Teachers association,
and most of the large crowd remained
on the field and over the grounds of the high school until all the exercises
were over.

A ball game was featured in the afternoon between the teams of Decatur high and Morgan county high.

CRAWFORD BEING CONGRATULATED

William E. Crawford, Decatur postmaster, today was receiving the congratulations of his host of friends over his re-nomination for another term.
Mr. Crawford, while a Democrat, received the appointment of President Harding and his name was confirmed
late yesterday by the senate.

Mr. Crawford is one of the several Democratic holdovers now administering postoffices in Alabama.

Austrian Imperial Children Now In Throes Of Poverty

With their father's bank account depleted, these Austrian imperial children, in exile at Madeira with their parents, are in the throes of poverty. The former Emperor of Austria believes that the nation he once ruled should supply him with funds. Political leaders in that country are discussing the probability of making him an allowance. In this group at the rear you see Archduke Felix, Crown Prince Otto and Archduke Ebert. In front are Archduke Rudolph, Archduchess Adelaide, holding the baby Archduchess Charlotte, and at the right Archduke Charles Louis. The children are soon to be augmented by a new arrival, their mother being in a delicate condition.

FUEL COMMISSION TO DISCUSS FACTS IN MINES PROPOSED

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, April 7.—Remedy
for the strike diseased coal industry
lies in the creation of a temporary federal commission from which should result a permanent fact-finding commission, with supervisory powers over the industry, John Brophy, one of the miners' leaders, testified today before
the house labor committee.

Brophy, who is president of district
two, embracing the mine region of central Pennsylvania, said that such a commission would compel the reorganization of the coal industry, eliminate recurrent strikes and be a general benefit to the public.

"We suggest a temporary commission, representing the coal industry
as a whole, made up of half operators
and half miners, with joint chairmen.
This will be in effect a joint conference
such as is being demanded by congress, the public, by the miners and
by everyone except a handful of die
hard Pittsburgh operators."

"The commission would bring out
all the facts. It would investigate,
not arbitrate."

GO BACK TO WORK BIRMINGHAM, April 7.—Employees of the Garvey Coal company, who re- sponded to the nation-wide strike call of the United Mine Workers of Amer- ica, have returned to work, leaving district 20, embracing the entire Ala- bama field, free from strike disturb- ances, according to reports today from the Alabama Mining Institute, repre- senting the operators. Officials of the Institute deny that important organi- zation work is being attempted by the union in this district.

Work is progressing at all points,
they declare. Union officials are silent. Operators declare demand for coal is improving, due to the strike in other fields. Production this week will exceed 300,000 tons, normal production being around 325,000.

ACT HELD VALID MONTGOMERY, Ala., April 7.— (Special)—Validity of the act of 1919 amending the juvenile court act of Jefferson county was sustained by the supreme court Thursday by a de- cision which affirmed the judgment of the Jefferson circuit court in the case of the state ex rel Ira J. Sellers ver- sus S. D. Murphy, judge of the juve- nile court.

Official Statement Issued Today By Farm Bureau

SILVER TALKS

Denies That Steiner Conferred About Shoals Plan

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, April 7.—
The American Farm Bureau
Federation has issued the following statement:

"The lengths to which the opposition to the Henry Ford offer
to lease the dam and nitrate
plants for manufacture of fertilizer at Muscle Shoals, Alabama,
will go was shown by Grey Silver, Washington representative of the bureau when he sent to the house committee on military affairs a letter from Roy C.
Bishop, secretary and manager
of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation, stating that General
R. E. Steiner has made representation to them that by securing the aid of Mr. Silver, the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation could secure the nitrate plant number two, could obtain a payment of $2,500,000 by a company securing the power at Muscle Shoals and be furnished with a 100,000 horsepower to operate the plant.

"No significance could attach to such a proposal were it not for the fact that additional information received from Alabama in the shape of a signed affidavit from Gaston Scott, of Montgomery, Ala., and a telegram from the president of the Alabama League of Women
Voters to the effect that General
Steiner is an employed attorney
of the Alabama Power company.
"This connection between General Steiner and the Alabama Power company, in its proposal
to the government, offered 100-000 horsepower free to the lessee
of the plant.

"The letter as submitted
stated that General Steiner had conferred with Mr. Silver on the subject, but Mr. Silver states that he has never, to his knowledge has met Mr. Steiner and certainly has not discussed this question with him."

CHARGES DENIED BIRMINGHAM, April 7.—"The statement that the Alabama Power company offered a virtual bribe of $2,500,000 if the Alabama farm bu- reau would seek to lease nitrate plant number two at Muscle Shoals is ab- solutely false."

This was the reply hurled by William Logan Martin, attorney of the Alabama Power company, to the charge alleged to have been made by Roy C. Bishop, secretary-manager of the Alabama farm bureau federation,
in a letter to Gray Silver, Washington representative of the federation.
General R. E. Steiner, who was referred to in the Silver statement, today issued a statement that he merely
called to the attention of the federation the possibilities of utilizing the available horsepower at Muscle Shoals
for fertilizer manufacture. He declared at the time his suggestion was made he was not employed by the power company.

BISHOP EXPLAINS MONTGOMERY, Ala., April 7.— Roy C. Bishop, secretary-manager of the Alabama farm bureau federation, when shown the statement issued at Washington by the American federa- tion, today gave out the following statement:

"General Steiner made no positive statement in this conference but gave his statement as his belief. Any interpretation placed upon our conference with General Steiner, leading to the assumption that General Steiner
had in his mind bribery and making an offer for any special company, in my judgment, is unwarranted. Nothing that I have had to say concerning
the conference with General Steiner

Circuit Court Has Concluded Docket

The circuit court adjourned today.
The morning was given over to hearing of the non-jury cases. The criminal docket will be taken up Monday morning and a very busy week is promised. Several capital cases are to be heard. It is understood that the grand jury will make a report this afternoon and adjourn. Judge Brickell is holding the court open until this report is made.

WE FAVOR ACCEPTANCE OF HENRY FORD'S BID FOR MUSCLE SHOALS.

LET'S HOPE GOVERNMENT'S COMPLETION OF WILSON DAM, BE WITHOUT PREJUDICE TO THE FORD OFFER.

With the news from Washington, that an agreement is in sight for the government to complete Wilson dam, comes a crumb of comfort, in that the new move is declared to be without prejudice to the Ford bid. It has only been surmise, though of the strong variety, that Republicans are moving to eliminate Mr. Ford, and The Daily would prefer to believe there is nothing in the reports that ulterior motives are behind the new move to have the government begin work again on Shoals project. On the whole it is better to accept the statements of Republican leaders, at face value that their sole object at present, is to conserve the work already done on Wilson dam. They attribute to Chairman Norris opposite motives to those so recently charged against him. They say Norris is not anti-Ford, but only aroused by conditions as he saw them on his recent trip to the Shoals.

Indeed Mr. Norris and his colleagues saw enough at Muscle Shoals, to cause them to demand an immediate resumption of work, without looking into the political situation. Mr. Norris, saw whole industrial empire that should be in the making, rusting out—going to the dogs. He saw the 37 miles of Tennessee river rapids, less navigable than nature left them because now there was an uncompleted dam blocking every thing. And he saw that the necessary supplemental dams had not been commenced. He saw that water should be falling 95 feet over the Wilson dam and the 18 giant turbines should be in operation as proposed. He saw the Tennessee's hundreds of thousands of cubic feet of water at the Shoals—unharnessed and useless, as had been the case for long prehistoric ages. He saw a great river-ocean traffic blocked for all time unless Wilson dam was completed and suitable lock systems installed so as to let large ships ply the great river from end to end.

Certainly Mr. Norris and his party saw more than enough at Muscle Shoals, that was big and commanding, to cause them to desire that not another day should be lost in the great development scheme. Granted, Congress proposes to move for the completion of Wilson dam, solely on the merits of the case, there can be no objection to such a move, and with the first dam out of the way, it should be an easier matter then, to award the whole enterprise to the best man.

Re-employment of several thousands of men on the Muscle Shoals project, seems reasonably certain in the very near future—and for this the Tennessee Valley is duly thankful—but the people's satisfaction will know no bounds, if indeed it turns out to be true, that nothing is going on at Washington, to delay the time when Henry Ford, that man who gave life to the Muscle Shoals enterprise when it was all but dead, shall take his rightful place as the mighty genius, who alone of all the men and corporations named in that connection, is able to do justice to the greatest industrial opportunity of modern times. On the other hand, if the Republicans are making their present plans and promises, for political ends, and aim in the final round up to defeat Ford, the wrath and indignation of the vast majority of the American people will know no bounds.

THE BAREFOOT BOY.

"Barefoot boy with your face of tan." The recurring period of the barefoot boy calls back memories to many of the older boys when they too were barefooted. The period was always one of worry for father and mother, as the questions which came at this period fell fast and thick when the first warm days of spring came. "Can I go barefooted today?" How many thousands of times has this one question been propounded to those in authority. Barefoot days marked a most important epoch in the life of the boy. It opened up a vista before him into which was crowded many things he hoped to do. There was the old swimming hole, with its slow eddies, slick banks, the old rock where the bull-frog dive was a favorite pastime, as they splashed headforemost into the warm waters of the creek close by. The fishing rod, the cup of red worms; the overspread branches of the tree above where the favorite spot was located. There all came in a panorama when the barefoot days approached, and so indelibly were they written on the minds of the boys, time can never erase it. It lives; and often in the more sombre moments of life when multiplied duties crowd about; when the mind is weary with problems of life which come to every one, these days of childhood come back and occupy the mind, taking all the worry and brain storm away and we live again by the mossy banks and under the spreading shade by the old swimming and fishing hole.

EDUCATIONAL CONFERENCE CALLED BY GOV. KILBY HAS VITAL TASK TO PERFORM.

The Citizens' Conference on Education which Governor Thomas E. Kilby has called to meet in Birmingham on April 13 is a move of the highest importance to educational progress in Alabama. The sessions of the Conference are to be held in the auditorium of the Southern club and they are to be attended by progressive and patriotic citizens from every part of Alabama, with the purpose of considering seriously the educational needs of the state and for devising means for giving the schools of Alabama better support.

To the Conference he has called Governor Kilby has invited all Alabamians who are interested in educational progress. The various counties, cities and communities will be represented by their best citizens and all civic bodies and patriotic, educational and fraternal organizations have been asked by the Governor to send representatives.

The educational Conference will not be a tiresome speech-making affair. The program provides for practical and pointed discussion, and for action. This is emphasized in personal letters Governor Kilby has written to prominent men whose interest in the movement he is enlisting. The Governor points out that the Conference is intended to bring about "improvement of the schools for better education of our children for industrial and economic efficiency, for good citizenship and for better living," and these he considers our most important problem of statesmanship at this time.

It is doubtful if a more opportune time could have been chosen by Governor Kilby for calling a conference of this kind. Alabama right now is at the pivotal point in educational matters. The splendid encouragement that Gov. Kilby has given to Alabama education during his administration has brought the schools of the state out of the critical period they had entered. The schools have moved to a higher plane, but they can move no further without the whole-hearted and determined effort of the people to make school progress the one great duty of the day.

That Alabamians are deeply interested in making this state's educational institutions more efficient by better equipping them for the work before them is proven in the very general and very determined effort being made to provide financial assistance for the State's greatest technical institution at Auburn. The Auburn alumni have set the pace for educational effort in this state which should lead a general effort in behalf of all of the state's schools. To this end the conference called by Governor Kilby should be attended by representative citizens from every part of the state and it should create so strong a sentiment for educational advancement that immediate results will be felt.

The moral and material development of Alabama citizenship depend upon good schools, and to have really good schools we must have schools that are adequately supported and in which the whole people are vitally interested. The Conference in Birmingham on April 13 can bring this to pass, and nothing is quite so important in Alabama at this time.—Anniston Star.

A SOLID PLATFORM.

Just now while all of us are demanding of candidates for office their platforms that we may vote intelligently in the coming primaries, the platform of Thomas Jefferson for civic life, which contained ten planks and which he called "A Decalog of Canons for Practical Life," will be of more or less interest. And it should be added it is a platform suited to civic duties, just as we hope and expect all candidates to give us a platform suited to official responsibilities. The following was Jefferson's platform for practical and every day life:

- 1.—Never put off till tomorrow what you can do today.
- 2.—Never trouble another for what you can do yourself.
- 3.—Never spend your money before you have it.
- 4.—Never buy what you do not need, because it is cheap; it will be dear to you.
- 5.—Pride costs us more than hunger, thirst and cold.
- 6.—We never repent of having eaten too little.
- 7.—Nothing is troublesome that we do willingly.
- 8.—How much pain have cost us the evils that have never happened.
- 9.—Take things always by the smooth handle.
- 10.—If angry, count ten before you speak; if over-angry, count a hundred.

We may be pardoned for suggesting that the candidate who can write a platform as suitable to the present political conditions as Jefferson in 1825, wrote and gave to the country his "Decalog of Canons for Practical Life," he will command the most distinguished consideration of the Alabama voter.

On Jefferson's ten planks all of us can stand, democrats, republicans, non-partisans and agricultural bloc, wets and dries, and progressive and reactionaries.

This is merely intended as a mild hint at this time to ambitious candidates.—Tuscaloosa News.

Superstitions and doubts have wrecked many lives on its shoals. Truth is steadfast; truth is sure; truth is abundant; truth is everywhere and all the time.

To turn a deaf ear to truth dwarfs the soul, calouses the heart, renders a life ineffective and uncertain. Stick to truth and grow; truth is vastly more than the spoken word.

Heaven is just as near as one will allow it to come. As God is everywhere, so is heaven. Heaven is expressed in contentment of mind and unalloyed happiness. It can be found in every nook and corner if one wills it.

Among the forest trees; by the brook; on the waves of the ocean; in the home; at the work shop; wherever the heart and mind is attuned to the spirit of the Divine will, there will heaven be, and never be found at any other place.

Opportunity knocks, but it don't stay very long to see, if one is going to grab it; it's too busy.

Every time an ignoble thought is conceived, that often must the resisting power be cultivated more intensely.

Destiny is what we will upon ourselves; opportunity, and the manner in which it is used is the fabric out of which destiny is woven.

The greatest lives generally speaking, are those lives that are filled with busy moments, stretching out into minutes, hours, days and years. The fishermen by the sea of Galilee were busy men; they were caught out from among the multitude

Regulation Of Jitneys Legal

MONTGOMERY, Ala., April 7.—The city commission of Birmingham did not take away any constitutional rights of operators of jitney automobiles when it adopted an ordinance requiring the jitneys to follow specified routes under a decision of the supreme court Thursday which sustained the validity of the ordinance. As a test of the authority of the commission to enact the ordinance which stopped the promiscuous operations of the five-cents-a-ride machines, J. J. Giglio brought before the Jefferson circuit court a petition for a writ of mandamus requiring the city commission to refrain from interfering with his business. He contended that the constitution of the United States and the constitution of Alabama was violated and that he was not permitted to maintain general competition with other operators of jitney machines.

The circuit court ruled in favor of the city, denied the application and held the ordinance to be valid. Giglio appealed to the supreme court which sustained the action of the lower court in an opinion written by Associate Justice William H. Thomas.

IN MEMORIAM

De Molay Commandery No. 14, K. T. E. H. Allison went calmly to sleep March 26th, 1922, dying as he lived, trusting in the Father who gave him life.

We should be constantly reminded that God in His infinite wisdom neither forgets nor forsakes His children. His promise was forcibly brought to our minds when we received the sad message that our brother had gone to rest.

God must have given command to His holy angels to leave the gates ajar and grant our brother a place in heaven, so quietly and quickly did his spirit pass to the great beyond. So gentle and noble was his life, so honorable and upright were his characteristics, so zealous and true his citizenship, so loyal and faithful to his friends we can but mourn our loss, but bow to the will of Him who doeth all things well and maketh no mistakes.

A beautiful unselfish home life, a devoted and lovable husband. The evolution of such a spiritual life gives every hope to his loved ones and friends that though his body lies under the flower covered mound of earth his spirit sleeps sweetly at the feet of Jesus, where affliction is not known.

Not only shall he be missed from the Masonic Fraternities, but in every walk of life, where he was at all times genial and true, always ready to give the best of himself to his friends who shall cherish loving memories of a life well spent.

We, his brothers, extend our tenderest sympathy to his devoted wife, and commend her to the Father who alone can comfort in trials severe. Sleep on, the sleep of the righteous.

We would not disturb thy calm. Sing sweetly with the angels of heaven. Give us a welcome beyond.

WILL INVITE COMER TO SPEAK HERE

At its meeting at the Albany chamber of commerce rooms last night, the Auburn college committee agreed to hold a public meeting Tuesday night, possibly at the Masonic theatre. The suggestion of W. W. Russell, Jr. was decided to invite former Governor B. B. Comer to address this gathering, in addition to Mr. De Barlelaben, of Birmingham, and possibly Joe Loveman, of Birmingham, who was due to attend the meeting last night but did not arrive. Mr. De Barlelaben was present and was warmly greeted. He promised to attend the meeting Tuesday night, arriving from Birmingham at 8 o'clock, when the speaking is to begin.

One of the principal attractions last night, as will be the case also Tuesday night, was the singing of Margaret Clarkson, the local artist who in the last year has so greatly added to her fame by the triumphs she has gained in New York City. Miss Clarkson sang "Yesterday and Today," accompanied by Mrs. A. G. Harris, in a manner that pleased and enraptured her many sincere admirers. She was encircled, but excused herself, saying that when next Tuesday night came and she again appeared, she would respond to encores, and might choose "The Rosary." It is needless to add that every one who heard Margaret Clarkson last night will hear her Tuesday night, either at the Masonic theatre or the chamber of commerce. J. W. Clifton presided last night and speeches were made by A. G. Harris, Mr. Garnett and Mr. Russell.

or have written about the conference could be so construed.

"I believe in justice to General Steiner and to the Alabama farm bureau federation that nothing sensational should be made out of his proposal unless it is desired to assume entire responsibility for speculation."

Mrs. J. R. Hagan, president of the Alabama League of Women Voters, wired the International News Service as follows: "The Alabama League of Women Voters has given out no statement with regard to General Steiner's connection with the Alabama Power company and knows nothing absolutely of his affairs."

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, April 7.—The cotton market was active at the start today, first prices being three to 12 points net higher. There was selling by Liverpool and New Orleans and buying by Japanese and local interests. The list was steady after the opening, although liquidation continued in May.

YOUR DRUGGIST

Does not keep Pinkham's Compound. He sells it.

During the year 1920, nearly 3,000,000 bottles of this medicine were shipped from the factory at Lynn, Massachusetts. There is also a branch in Canada and one in Mexico.

President Dowell Explains Campaign

AUBURN HAS REACHED ITS MAXIMUM CAPACITY—AND THEN STRETCHED THAT A BIT!

Dr. Spright Dowell, President of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn, in outlining the necessity for the Greater Auburn Campaign said, "For fifty years Auburn has been efficiently and intelligently serving the people of Alabama, and taking the lead in the development of her resources."

"To maintain and improve her unparalleled record for service, Auburn must have more adequate buildings and equipment."

"Auburn is fifty years old. The campaign celebrates her fiftieth anniversary. This 'Greater Auburn Semi-Centennial Campaign' has been considered for more than a year. In May, 1921, the definite proposal of the Alumni Association, was approved by the Board of Trustees. Although initiated by the alumni, the people of Alabama champion this cause, for Auburn is the people's college."

"While glorying in Auburn's past, her friends realize that there has come a time when an appeal must be made to her alumni and friends if she is to maintain leadership. With the present facilities and income Auburn has reached her maximum service. The demands upon her continue to increase and she merely asks for means with which to meet these demands."

"The larger industries of the State are now vitally dependent upon Auburn for manpower, the demand will increase. Every phase of agricultural and industrial life in Alabama is fast becoming standardized. This standard is based on scientific principles. Alabama men, when properly trained, fit into Alabama conditions much better than those unfamiliar with the State's needs and work. Auburn must train these men. To do so, she must have millions of dollars in order to render greater service to the State's industrial and agricultural development."

CONDITION AT AUBURN TELLS THE STORY

STUDENTS HUDDLED TOGETHER LIKE REFUGEES IN A WAR TORN LAND—QUARTERS ENTIRELY INADEQUATE.

Auburn has no dormitory for boys, and only a very small one for girls. The town of Auburn, consisting of 250 houses, is now housing 1000 students, or an average of 4 per residence.

No additional students can be taken at Auburn until dormitories are built. At present 160 boys are rooming in temporary frame barracks, and students unable to gain admission in this structure, left by the U. S. Government after the war, are forced to live in tents. Some of the poorer boys, not being able to gain admission into the dormitory, and being unable to secure accommodation at the students dining room, where they would save from $5 to $10 per month table board, find it impossible to attend the institution, and will be deprived of an education until dormitories are provided. Auburn's auditorium seats only one-half the present student body. The library is only one-fourth large enough. The college has no hospital and there is none in the community. The chemical laboratory was outgrown 15 years ago. More than 600 students are in the engineering classes, which have equipment and accommodations entirely inadequate to meet the present needs. Every classroom is used every hour in the day and some classes have to be held before breakfast and after supper. There is not enough equipment to give the students the proper opportunities to familiarize themselves with its use. Most of the equipment in the chemical laboratories and engineering department is 30 years old, and even of that, there is not nearly enough to go around.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE: I am a girl in my teens, and I am in love with a young man one year my senior.

My parents object to my going with him. The only reason is that he is red-headed and has a harelip. He seems to love me dearly. My grandmother tells me beauty is only skin deep, and that I should use my own judgment if I love him, which I do very much.

Please advise me what to do. He wants to marry me.
A SAD UNDECIDED HEART.

A SAD UNDECIDED HEART: If the objection of your parents is solely on account of the young man's looks, I am sure that you and your grandmother can overcome their opposition to your marriage when they see that you are truly in love.

Be frank with your parents, and tell them so. I agree with your grandmother that it is not always the handsome man who makes the good husband. It is the qualities of character which count.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE: I was in love with a girl I thought was the dearest little thing on earth. I know she doesn't love me now, although it was a long time before she announced her intentions of marrying some one else.

She is angry with me now. I can't blame her, but I dearly love her. I wish to explain to her, but she is deaf to any entreaties whatsoever. I was formerly a soldier. Is there any way to gain her friendship?

What is the best thing to do—forget her?
BIG BOY.

TO BOY: Yes, the very best and kindest thing—both for you and for her—is to forget her.

CLAIMS ROMANCE WITH WEALTHY MAIDENS

Adjudged by one examining official to be a paranoiac, August Probst, former Swiss butler at Pittsburgh's exclusive Rolling Rock Club, in fighting deportation from Ellis Island, revealed alleged romances with daughters of two Pittsburgh millionaires. Miss Virginia McKay, daughter of a socially prominent Pittsburgh family, has emphatically denied that either she or her chum, Miss Sarah Mellon, niece to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, wrote notes to Probst while he was employed at the club of which they are members. Neither she nor Miss Mellon received notes from Probst, she asserted.

DEPARTMENT HANDICAPPED

No department at Auburn has been more handicapped than the agricultural. The lack of equipment in that department which means so much to the farmers of the state and upon which Alabama must largely depend for agricultural development in the future is indicated in the small amount of money Auburn has invested in agricultural barns. The following figures speak for themselves: The Mississippi Agricultural and Mechanical College has $13,000 invested in college barns where Auburn has $1,000; Oklahoma Agricultural College, $19,000 to Auburn's $1,000; North Carolina has $15,000 to Auburn's $1,000; Clemson College (South Carolina) $10,000 to Auburn's $1,000; Florida University $4,500 to Auburn's $1,000; Kentucky University $6,000 to Auburn's $1,000; Tennessee University, $15,000 to Auburn's $1,000. So it goes.

Diary of a Fashion Model

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

She Describes a Stunning Cape Costume of Navy Jersey.

MISS PHILLIPS is a young lady who often comes in with her mother to buy clothes. Miss Phillips isn't very prepossessing, and she rather annoys me, because the other girls insist that she has a "crush" on me. This is only because so many of the clients pay so little attention to us, and when some one is extra nice it becomes very evident.

"Do you like me in this?" she often asks when she tries on a frock.

I'm forced to tell her the truth, because if I don't think clothes are suited to people I can't bear to have them buy them.

"No, you aren't slender enough," I answered one day. "That first frock was much more your type."

"But you looked so well in this," she answered.

I didn't feel like boasting, but I reflected that it would take her many days of dieting to get her lines down to mine.

"That's an evil you must watch out for," I said. "So many women, some of them quite old and fat, see these slim young models in clothes that become them in every detail, and think they can buy the clothes and look the same way."

"You're very discouraging," murmured Miss Phillips.

"Well, I don't mean to be. I only want to help you," I answered, truthfully. "Here comes Miss Edith with a costume I just feel will be the thing for you."

Miss Edith helped her get into it while I stood by to lend my advice. The slim navy-blue jersey dress was really lovely.

White Wool Stitching Trims This Navy Jersey Frock.

ly with Miss Phillips's hair and coloring.

"How attractive these long white-wool stitches are," she said. "It's really an awfully effective way to trim a frock."

"I think it's stunning," I answered. "I like the simple round neckline on you, too."

"But wait till you see how clever the cape is," I added, as Miss Edith fastened it at the throat and adjusted the turn-back collar well up about her neck.

"These little loops of material fascinate me," exclaimed Miss Phillips. "I suppose they are to slip my hands in."

"Exactly," I answered. "And the nice part is they combine attractiveness with a very useful mission."

"It would be a relief to have a cape I could keep partly about me without having to hump over in order to hug it in at the front. I saw women doing that in fur coats last year till I grew weary of the silhouette."

"That's just why capes are being made easier to wear," I answered. "Women are demanding things both smart-looking and convenient."

"And for convenience to slip on over any kind of dress, nothing takes the place of a cape," she commented.

"Cape costumes are smarter than ever for spring, and I know you'll love this," I answered. "You want it, don't you?"

"Yes, and I want to try on that adorable white hat I saw downstairs."

Miss Edith brought up the hat made of grosgrain ribbon, which looped about the edge. It was most becoming, and Miss Phillips left well pleased with herself.

How Dr. McDermott Smoothed Everything Out.

DICKY'S nonchalance is proof positive that everything else save praise of his heroic record during the world war.

At Dr. McDermott's exclamations of recognition he flushed a brick red and stammered like an abashed schoolboy. But the enthusiastic little physician, unnoticing, was pumping his husband's arm up and down, while he continued to utter his mild stereotyped exclamations of "Dear me!" and "Who would have thought it!"

"Don't give yourself another thought, my boy, concerning this little contretemps," he said. "Why, Mrs. Graham's action was only most natural and logical under the circumstances, although I wouldn't advise its repetition." He inclined his head toward me courteously, with an amused little smile which made me feel about six years old.

"I will go down to the office now," the physician continued, "and arrange everything. You will no doubt wish a larger room than this, so I will register you both for one of our best upon another floor, and will settle 'Mrs. Black's bill'—another smile at me—"up till now. This will be satisfactory, I hope"—he turned to Dicky deprecatingly.

"Satisfactory!" Dicky exclaimed. "I should think it was more than that. We are deeply indebted to you, Dr. McDermott. Tell me, are you so busy that you can't spare a little supper sent up to our new quarters when we get there? I'd like to know you better."

The little physician's face glowed pink with pleasure, and in his eyes shone admiration of Dicky, born of his army experience.

The Doctor Accepts.

"I shall be more than delighted," he said, "although Mrs. Graham—" he paused and looked at me, his professional instincts warring with his social ones. "I am afraid it may be too much for her."

"You don't know her, doctor!" Dicky retorted. "A little blowout will do her good—take her mind off her bumped head. She's been in the country so long she'll eat it up. Of course, if she had to dress and go out, nothing doing. But with only her husband and her physician at the party, she can sit up just as long as she feels like it and lie down when she doesn't. Can't you get us a little suite, sitting-room, bedroom and bath? Or aren't there any vacant?"

"I am sure that can be managed," Dr.

McDermott returned, moving toward the door, "and I will be back immediately. You won't need to dress, completely. Mrs. Graham. I can bring you a long coat."

"I brought one with me," Dicky interposed, promptly. "But thank you for your kindness, doctor. We'll be ready when you get back, and when we're settled in the other rooms I'll order supper."

The little physician bowed himself out, and Dicky looked at me quizzically, and I suspected a little cockily. But I was too relieved at the way things had turned to take umbrage at his attitude. He surely was entitled to a little preening of his mental plumage. I said to myself, smiling at him with what I flattered myself was just the right touch of wifely admiration.

Made Compliments Dicky.

"You've been wonderful, Dicky," I said heartily. "I am ashamed of myself for making all this trouble."

"Oh, I'll forgive you," Dicky said with the burlesque loftiness which he knows always brings an exasperated exclamation from me, "and you probably will be restored to citizenship after a suitable period of penance. But let's get busy now. I'll put your shoes on, and help you with what little dressing you need. Of course, old Lil came to bat and sent you a long cloak. I'd never have thought of it, but that old girl never forgets a trick."

"She's wonderful," I agreed, "but, with a sudden rush of appreciation for the way Dicky had rescued me from my humiliating predicament, 'somebody else I know is wonderful, too.'"

"Who? The doctor?" Dicky demanded with an amused glance.

I returned his glance saucily. "Of course, the doctor," I drawled. Then I caught sight of myself in the mirror and sank down on the bed laughing hysterically. The saucy mouse which ordinarily Dick likes, and which, woman, unlike on account of that knowledge, I occasionally use, had become a grotesque grimace because of the unsightly dislocation of my eye and forehead.

"What's the matter?" Dicky asked comically.

"I caught sight of myself in the mirror just as I made a face at you," I exclaimed between giggles. "Truly, a lady with a black eye has no business trying to be coquettish. Did you see how awful I looked?"

Dicky promptly lied as a gentleman should.

"I didn't notice," he said. "Dye think that's all I think of you—your looks? You're always the same to me, sweetheart."

And though I knew his words were only partly true, they warmed my heart.

The Way Dicky Bantered Madge Into Keen Wakefulness.

THE waiter is laying the table in the sitting-room by the fire, Madge. Is there anything I can do to help you dress?"

Dicky was standing in the doorway of the bedroom in the hotel suite Dr. McDermott had secured for us, his face holding the anticipatory complacency which the thought of good food generally brings to masculine features.

I brought myself back from my drowsy dreamland with difficulty and smiled up at Dicky.

"You sound most attractively Dick-eneque," I said. "If you could only produce Mr. Mcawber to grill a chop or fix something in a saucepan, now."

"You're only talking to postpone getting up," Dicky grinned down at me. "I know you when you're sleepy. But it's no use. Up you get, unless, of course, your head is hurting too bad. If it is, I'll bring your dinner in here."

"My head isn't hurting at all—that is, nothing to speak of," I amended conscientiously. "and I'm not sleepy any more. But, Dicky, what will the waiter think of me looking like this?"

I put a troubled hand up to my forehead, and felt myself flushing a little at the quizzical grin I saw upon Dicky's face.

"You Don't Mean—" "Think," he echoed. "There's only one thing possible for him to think, and that is, that you've been up to something which you shouldn't, and that I very properly gave you a husbandly lift on the head. The waiter will not express any opinion, of course, being a properly-trained gent, but I'll bet a cookie he'll silently applaud me in his heart."

"Oh, Dicky, do stop your nonsense!" I groaned. "For if there's a grain of truth in what you say I won't go in the other room at all."

"You Little Idiot!"

"What is it Lil always tells you: 'Don't be an annotated idiot just because you know how.' Dicky's voice held a touch of impatience. "What d'ya think you're going to do during the time you're getting rid of those black and blue spots, go into a nursery? Can't be done, my dear. You've got to hunt up Katie and get back home, and all that entails being seen in public. I'll grant you that I'd balk on entering the public dining-room of this hotel or any other with you just now, for I'm the ultimate goat in this business, but a dinner in our own rooms like this with just Dr. McDermott and one lone waiter present is something else again. Here are your shoes. Stick out your feet and I'll put them on for you."

I obeyed him, but mechanically, for I was much upset by his reference to himself as the "ultimate goat."

"Dicky," I pleaded, "you don't mean that people will really think—" "That I gave you your good and plenty," Dicky asserted with maddening cheerfulness. "Why, of course, they will! You ought to know that. All you've got out of this is a black eye."

But the reputation of being a wife-slagger is pinned on me forever and ever. I don't care so long as it's only noted women and house physicians and people of that sort to whom little affairs of this kind are only instances of almost daily, or, rather, hourly occurrence. But if ever the boys heard about it I'd never hear the last of it. Most of 'em wouldn't really believe it, but they'd pretend to, all right, and existence would be just one hectic little slice of purgatory until they got a chance to get some other fellow's goat. Don't you dare let any of the Durkees see you until your map is all straight again. I can imagine what old Alf would do to me if he'd get a glimpse of you now."

The jealousy which always lurks in my heart at any reference, no matter how remote, to Edith Fairfax leaped up, flaming unreasonably, irresponsibly.

"You needn't worry," I said childishly. "I'll not be apt to go near the Durkees, or shame you with any of their relatives by my awful appearance."

For a tremulous, remorseful second, I thought I had made my husband furiously angry. He scowled blackly, and muttered something under his breath. Then he looked down at me for a long second, threw back his head and laughed heartily.

"You little idiot!" he said, pulling me to my feet, and slipping an arm around my shoulders. "What you need is another black eye to match the one you have, and to take some of the nonsense out of you. Hurry up now and get into whatever clothes you want to wear for supper before I decide to take the game as well as the name."

SELF DEFENSE IS PLEA OF OFFICERS

(International News Service)

BIRMINGHAM, April 7.—Efforts to show that the shot which killed Ernest Tidmore, when a vegetable wagon on which he was coming to Birmingham, was raised by federal prohibition officers several months ago, were made in self defense were launched this afternoon when the defense opened in the trial of W. E. Eubanks, one of the defendant officers.

The defense is expected to finish presentation of its case this afternoon and submission to the jury probably will come Saturday. Outcome of the case against Eubanks, who is the first of three federal prohibition officers and one former city policeman, to be placed on trial for the Tidmore killing, is expected to be made a test case for disposition of the others.

Francesco Petrarch.

It is said that the great Italian poet, Francesco Petrarch, died, almost exactly to the day, 70 years after his birth. There seem to be conflicting dates regarding his precise day of birth and death, although the variance is very little. One account says that he died July 19, 1374.—Chicago Journal.

The Way Dr. McDermott Arranged Everything.

HOW Dr. McDermott explained things to the authorities of the hotel, I never knew. But that he was able to make satisfactory arrangements was proved when he returned to the room where Dicky and I were waiting, bearing in his hand a folded paper and a doorknob.

"I thought perhaps you'd prefer that I let it be, bellboy," he said, handing the folded paper to Dicky. "This is 'Mrs. Black's' receipted bill. There was really no need of either of you being bothered."

Dicky thanked him heartily, then stuffed the paper into his pocket nonchalantly.

"I'll just keep this for a souvenir," he said, banteringly. "As he brought out when my wife gets to feeling too femininely superior. It's always a good thing to have a rod in pickle, doctor, as you probably know."

The physician looked at me with a twinkle in his eye.

"If Mrs. Graham is like most women, she probably has a good sized bunch in readiness for you," he said. "You can enunciate a whole menu, there," Dicky ejaculated. "Trust her. No, I'll take that bag, by your leave. You can do without that accessory to your role of bellboy. And, by the way, she's not so settled now for Mrs. Black's bill?"

His hand went toward the pocket where he keeps his billfold, but an authoritative gesture from the little physician arrested it.

"We won't discuss that now," he said decisively. "Time enough later. The thing now is to get Mrs. Graham to her new quarters with as little delay and exertion as possible."

A Safe Transfer.

I thanked him mentally, for my head beneath the hat I had put on was throbbing with nervous pain. Lilian, with her usual thoughtfulness, had stuffed a dark veil in the pocket of the long motor coat she had sent by Dicky, and with it draped around my hat in such a way that my forehead was hidden. I was able to disguise my plight to some small degree. But I knew that such a drape alone would attract the eyes of the curious, and I was anxious, indeed, to have the running of the gauntlet over and find myself in the suite, the physician had promised us.

It proved, however, a far less formidable ordeal than I had thought. "We met only a few people on the way, and those very paid my hasty appearance the tribute of a glance, quick, prolonged, furtive or open, the consciousness of protection which the presence of Dicky and the physician gave me supported me so firmly that I reached the haven of the suite Dr. McDermott had secured for us without the collapse which I secretly had feared when I started upon my short journey.

The little physician gave me a restorative as soon as the door had shut behind us, and spoke authoritatively to Dicky.

"She is to lie down at once," he said, "and keep perfectly quiet for half an hour. After that we'll discuss the matter of the little supper you were kind enough to propose."

The Doctor Scores.

He left the room somewhat abruptly, and I felt Dicky's fingers busy with the fastenings of my cloak and hat.

"There!" he said masterfully, flinging them, man-like, in a heap on the floor. "Those are out of the way."

He lifted me, bore me to the little bedroom, and put me carefully down on the bed, loosened my track, took off my shoes, covered me carefully, and, stooping, kissed me.

"To sleep a little," he said tenderly.

I put up my arms, clasping him closely, tremulously.

"I can't sleep," I said, "but I can rest here wonderfully, and I do want you to know how much it means to me to have you here. I feel so safe, some way."

"I'll sit outside the cave with my stone hatchet," he promised lightly, "and any other cave man shall come within howling distance, and if you are a good girl and keep quiet, me and the Doc will let you join us when the kill is ready."

He tip-toed out of the room, and I lay quiet, the throbbing nervous pain gradually leaving my forehead. It was a most comfortable little sleep that came to me, and when I awoke I luxuriated in the warmth and elegance with which I was surrounded. I felt that the memory of the past hectic hours had slipped into the limbo of things not forgotten, but not too strenuously remembered.

At the end of the half-hour he had named, the little physician reappeared, felt my pulse, took my temperature, and spoke to Dicky.

"I saw Dicky's quick frown, and knew that he was annoyed. But I thrilled with pride that Dicky's bravery and wonderful exploits had not been forgotten."

"Which will be some long rest if this bed isn't a most unusual one," Dicky interrupted.

"The little physician smiled. "It is like all the rest," he conceded, "but I took the liberty of confiding to you the task of sending the supper up here for Capt. Graham, formerly of the air service, and I don't think we will need to complain either of the food or the service."

HOW MONEY WILL BE USED

Every penny raised during the Greater Auburn campaign will be used for buildings and equipment at Auburn. Not one cent of the money secured during the campaign will be used to pay the expenses incurred in raising the money. Positive assurances of this fact have been given by Dr. Spright Dowell, President of Auburn, and by Charles F. De Bardeleben, general chairman.

The small sum expended in putting on the campaign has been contributed privately before the campaign was launched by Auburn men in Leo County and 100 cents of every dollar raised during the campaign will be used for the purpose of buildings or equipment.

Surprise has been expressed at the small expenditures during the campaign but the policy of strict economy and of using mostly volunteer workers interested in the success of Auburn has accounted for this fact.

Emphasis is also laid upon the fact that none of the money raised during the Great Auburn campaign will be used for either endowment or for paying salaries or other expenses of the college.

The need at Auburn at present is primarily for buildings and equipment and for the aid of students and to provide equipment and classrooms for them to work with.

One Sixth of Crop Signed Up In Pool

One-sixth of the entire cotton crop of the South has been signed in the big cotton pool that has been set going over the cotton producing states of the South. All the plans are similar to the plans as fostered by Alabama and Morgan county growers have signed up several thousand bales already. It is estimated that the pool will save to the growers of the South many millions of dollars. It is stated by those in position to know that even when the farmer sold his cotton at a high price, or on a high market he lost from $5 to $15 by undergrading. It now seems that the emancipation of the cotton growers of the South is at last insured.

IS YOUR CHILD SICK AND AILING?

Give It Gude's Pepto-Mangan—For Thirty Years Doctors' Favorite Tonic

Children that grow too fast and play too hard or perhaps work too hard at school (oh, yes, some children do work hard at school) become pale and a little run-down, and then mothers and fathers become worried about them. The youngsters do not eat with their usual big appetites, and so they become thin and tire out easily. There is a simple and good remedy for this. It is Gude's Pepto-Mangan, the tonic rich in a certain form of iron that is readily absorbed by the system. Gude's Pepto-Mangan will soon put the color back into the children's cheeks and give them the kind of an appetite every mother loves to see. It is sold by druggists in two forms—liquid and tablet—and is absolutely safe to give to any child. Ask your home doctor what he thinks about Gude's Pepto-Mangan.—Advertisement.

When you can make, in two minutes a world beating remedy that acts directly on the membrane and often overnight causes stubborn coughs and even hard chest colds to disappear, why trifle with things that will probably disappoint?

Hawking and snuffing and also soreness of the mucus membrane go and you will feel better in almost no time.

Just get one ounce of Parment (double strength) add to it a little sugar and enough hot water to make a half pint and you've got an inexpensive remedy better than you can buy ready mixed.

Its soothing, healing action on the membrane is the reason so many people use it for catarrh and acute nasal colds.—Advertisement.

ANNUAL FOX TROTS IN CHURCH AFTER FEAST

(International News Service)

PARIS, April 7.—Since a Spanish play, produced at the Opera Comique, depicted dancing in churches Parisians believe that dancing in such establishments in Spain is quite fashionable, only they themselves would be against such attractions in France.

Nevertheless there exists a church in France where one day in the year—Saint Marcel's Day—dancing is allowed in the village church. At Barjols, in the Var department, they kill the fatted calf and cook it in the church and eat it there. After the meal the choir makes way for a local orchestra, which hits up the liveliest fox trots and shimmies, and couples gaily whirl around a floor shorn of its pews and chairs.

GLEE CLUB HEARD BY LARGE CROWD

The Birmingham Southern glee club directed by O. Gordon Erickson and with Miss Anne Greene accompanist and soloist, appeared at the Decatur high school last night at 8 o'clock and was greeted with an enthusiastic audience, which comfortably filled the auditorium. Of the entire membership of 22, one member, John Dawson, was absent on account of illness. With the exception of Mr. Dawson's guitar solo, the entire program was rendered and a liberal response was made to the dozens of encores.

After a few introductory numbers, "The Rosary" was rendered as good as the best, and then quickly followed a humorous courting song, "Go to Father," that individual, as the girl and her suitor both knew, being in Hades, and the girl told the boy to go there, in answer to his request for her hand in marriage. Thus all the way through the busy, hustling program, pathetic numbers and humorous selections alternated. One of the early big hits made was by G. Meyer, in the familiar negro song, "Little Log Cabin in the Lane." Mr. Meyer sang with his own guitar as the accompanying musical instrument and he played it with grace. He was loudly cheered as he closed this number. Another heavy hit was the club's imitation of Scottish Bag Pipes. This came as an encore. The many well set up love scenes and the accompanying songs, proved once again the universal appeal the gentle passion always makes. In the mock wedding, followed by a real wedding march as played by Miss Greene, the entire club "starred" if such an old word is permissible in our new age, especially at its close when Miss Greene slashed out the chords of the march, as showers of rice and old shoes fell upon the happy couple, when they were seen embracing as the curtain descended. The program was concluded with the musical farce, "Ill Treated Trovatore," a strange blending of

Seized Yacht Is Given Its Release

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, April 7.—Prohibition officials today ordered enforcement agents at New York to release the private yacht of James Shewan, of New York, seized with her supplies of liquor at that port.

Commissioner Haynes was informed by the department of justice that there was no excuse to seize the vessel. The same vessel was seized a few weeks ago at Miami, but later was returned to her owner.

The liquors also were restored to Mr. Shewan.

DIPLOMATIC MAIL BY AIR

SENSATION OF THE MEDICAL WORLD

Calotabs, the Purified and Refined Calomel Tablet Does Not Gripe, Nauseate Nor Salivate.

The horrors of Saturday night Calomel taking are a thing of the past. According to druggists, Calotabs the de-nauseated calomel tablet is a grand success, the triumph of modern pharmacy. Not the slightest danger or unpleasantness attends its use and yet it exhibits all of the liver-cleansing and system-purifying qualities of the old-style calomel.

There can be no doubt that calomel is the most valuable and universally useful of all medicines and now that its objectionable qualities have been removed its popularity will have no bounds. One Calotab on the tongue at bedtime, with a swallow of water—no taste, no nausea, or unpleasantness whatever. The next morning you are feeling fine liver clean, splendid appetite. Eat what you please—no danger.

Beware of imitations! Genuine Calotabs are sold only in "checker-board" (black and white) packages bearing the copyrighted trade mark "Calotabs." The large, family size sells for 35 cents; vest pocket size, 10 cents. All dealers are authorized to refund the price if you are not delighted with Calotabs.—Advertisement.

UTILITY COMPANIES
DO NOT FARE WELL

(Montgomery Bureau, Albany-Deatur Daily)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., April 8—Public service corporations did not fare well in decisions of the public service commission made public today. Shortly after the commission issued a temporary order requiring the Mobile street car company to continue its present rates in effect until a final decision is rendered, it issued an order requiring the Alabama Power company to put users of X-ray machines on lighting rates instead of power rates, another order denying the petition of the Louisville and Nashville railroad for an increase in the rates for transferring shipments from one station to another in Gadsden and still other orders denying the petition of the American Railway Express company for permission to lose the agency of the company at Foshee.

In addition to these orders the commission granted the petition of the Bank of Camden which will require the American Railway Express company to receive shipments of money the evening before the train leaves Camden and issued a citation to the Frisco to appear at a special meeting April 20 and show why it should not be required to provide adequate freight service to the Central Coal company in its spur track leading from Carbon Hill.

In the Gadsden case, the Louisville and Nashville proposed that the rate of five cents for transferring one hundred pounds between stations be increased to six cents and that the minimum charge be increased from fifteen cents to twenty-five cents.

In the X-ray case the commission held that as X-ray machines are used intermittently and not for long periods it was not just to require their owners to pay power rates which carry a minimum charge even though no electricity be used. The order provides that lighting rates shall be used but that the person desiring the service must bear the cost of installing any extra electrical equipment necessary for the service.

In the citation to the Frisco railroad the commission proposes to find out why the railroad has declined to furnish freight service to the Central Coal company, which owns a spur track and has complained that the railroad has declined to furnish adequate service.

PRINCESS MONDAY

"A Virgin Paradise"

"A Virgin Paradise," the sensational and spectacular picture, will come to the Princess Monday and Tuesday. The story, dealing with life in a South Sea island jungle and with civilized hypocrisy, was written by Hiram P. Maxim. The scenes include the destruction of a tropical island by a volcanic eruption, with the death of the entire population except two persons, and the burning of a palatial country place on Long Island, New York. The survivors on the island are the infant daughter of a missionary, Gratia Latham, and her native nurse. The nurse dies while Gratia is still a child and she lives on with only lions, apes and other wild animals as her companions.

SHERIFF'S SALE
By virtue of one Fieri Facias issued out of the Clerk's office of the Circuit court of Morgan county and state of Alabama, and to me directed, whereby I am commanded to make the amount of a certain judgment recently obtained against W. C. Bynum out of the goods, chattels, lands and tenements of the said W. C. Bynum, I have levied on the following property, to-wit:

S. W. 1-4 of S. W. 1-4 Sec. 32 Tn. 5, R. 5, N. W. 1-4 of S. W. 1-4 Sec. 5, Tn. 6, R. 5, 24 acres W. of Decatur and Moulton Pike in N. E. 1-4 of S. W. 1-4 Sec. 5, Tn. 6, R. 5, all of N. E. 1-4 of N. E. 1-4, Sec. 5, Tn. 6, R. 5, except one acre in N. W. corner, containing in all 144 acres.

Therefore, according to said command, I shall expose for sale at public auction, all the right title and interest of the above-named W. C. Bynum in and to the above described property, on the 10th day of April, 1922, during the legal hours of sale, at the Court House door in Morgan County, Ala.

Dated at Decatur, Ala., this 6th day of March, 1922.

The Way Dicky Revealed
Surprising Facts to Madge.

DICKY'S rough nonsense with its suppressed note of displeasure—suppressed, I knew, because of my injury—effectually extinguished my little blaze of childish temper and gave me a desire to make amends to my husband for my childishness. I twisted swiftly around in his arms and put my palms on either side of his face.

"I'm sorry, Dicky," I said humbly. "I didn't mean to be horrid, but—"

His first answer was a tightening of his arms about me, a roughly tender kiss. Then he stared at me a bit curiously.

"Sometimes in the course of the next hundred years or so," he said, with more than a touch of exasperation in his voice, "I'm going to take a month or two off and find out just what's in the back of your head concerning poor old Ed, that you froth at the mouth every time there's a remark concerning anybody or anything in the same county with her. No, you needn't try to wriggle away. I'm not going to put you through any indignation now, I'm just registering a threat or a promise, whichever way you mean to view it, for future use. Is this the gown you want to put on?"

Madge Wonders—
His manner decisively dismissed Edith Fairfax from our conversational horizon, and I was glad enough to pick up his cue.

"As it is the only gown I have with me," it is Hobson's choice," I returned airily. "And I don't need you now, dear. My head is better, and it would be absurd for me to fuss over my toilet with this awful eye. Do go out and talk to Dr. McDermott, and I'll follow in just a few minutes."

"Well—all right," Dicky assented reluctantly. "But call me if you want anything."

"Oh, surely," I returned, hoping that Dicky would not notice my feverish eagerness to get him out of the room.

For the revelation that he had given me concerning his knowledge of my antipathy to Edith Fairfax had shaken me deeply. I wondered if he had spoken as he had because of my little outburst, or if his odd little speech was the result of long and keen observation and deduction on his part, of my reactions toward Edith's name and presence. I shrank from the latter hypothesis fearfully. It was as if I had suddenly discovered myself to have been under the scalpel of a vivisectionist.

I pulled myself together bravely, as the rather thin tones of the little physician came to my ears. It was almost time for the supper to be served. I must not let Dicky suspect that my nervous outburst over Edith Fairfax had affected me beyond the moment.

"Nothing Doing."
It was but the work of two or three minutes for me to arrange my hair so as to cover my discolored forehead as much as possible, and slip on my gown. My mirror told me so and a story, however, that I dreaded to enter the sitting-room and encounter even the friendly eyes of Dicky and Dr. McDermott.

I need not have feared, however. They rose perfunctorily when I entered, and the physician made his conventional professional inquiries. Then they returned as eager schoolboys might do to the animated conversation in which they had been engaged when I entered, and which I soon discovered to be composed wholly of activity service reminiscences.

I might as well have been back in Sag Harbor for any attention they paid to me, a fact for which they never omitted grateful. Of course, they never omitted the perfunctory courtesies which to men like them are reflex actions rather than thought-controlled ones, but beyond those, I do not think either man had those, I do not think either man had any actual knowledge of my presence at the table. It was "Did you see?" and "Do you remember?" and "Were you at—" and all the other queries which one ex-service man puts to another when they have a chance to talk undisturbed.

I was most careful not to say or do anything which would break the spell. Like most of the real heroes of the war, Dicky would never talk of his experiences. I had mourned many times because I knew so little of his perils and triumphs—little more, in fact, than the newspaper public had been given in the war dispatches. But here, in confidential talk with the little physician—himself, as I guessed, a veteran with heroic field and hospital service to his credit—Dicky had dropped the barriers, and was unwittingly revealing a record which made me glow and thrill with wifely pride.

It was like listening to a saga of the old Norse warriors. I thought, as the evening wore on, and I found myself unconsciously falling into as worshipfully humble an attitude toward my husband as any wife of that long ago time and clime could have held.

Something of this feeling I tried to express to Dicky when at last the supper was over, and Dr. McDermott had bidden us farewell. But the spell had been broken, and my husband's only reply was an irritability.

Strawberry Crop
Now Looking Fine

The strawberry fields around Harbelle are now in full bloom, and unless something unforeseen happens a good crop will be gathered. This is the first experience with many in the place and the outcome of this crop will be watched with a great deal of interest. Should a fair remuneration be the result of the present crop, more acreage will be set again in the fall. There are several acre plots planted to berries at Harbelle, it is understood. A carload of berries have been received and distributed among the berry raisers.

Not Negro Songs.

Most people fancy in a vague way that Stephen Foster's songs are negro or were inspired by the negro music. But "Old Folks at Home" and the other Foster melodies are about as unlike negro music as anything could possibly be. That their words are often in negro dialect and express negro sentiments is simply a historic accident due to the fact that in Foster's day the negro minstrels, real or "cooked," were the only means of bringing music before the public.

PRINCESS CHRYSANTHEMUM

The two literary societies of the Decatur High School presented a play "Princess Chrysanthemum" in the auditorium of the High School Wednesday evening. They had the largest and most appreciative audience that has ever witnessed an entertainment of the kind in the history of the school. Credit for the success of this play was due largely to the untiring efforts and work of Miss Margery Rainey, the supervisor and director of the play, Miss Lucille Bailey, the director of music, and the cast, which ranged from children in the third grade in grammar department through the High School. The proceeds, which amounted to $82.75, went to the Victrola fund.

There were 75 people included in the cast, the most prominent of these were: Miss Marjory Pointer as Princess Chrysanthemum, Donald Humphrey as her father, Dewoodie Wilkinson as one of the suitors and Farrow Himes as the other, Billy McNeill as Saucer-Eyes, the wizard cat, Perry Edwards as Top Knot, the high court chamberlain, and Frances Barnes as Fairy Moonbeam. The costumes were gorgeous in color and texture especially in the Japanese Chorus. Probably the most unique number on the program was the umbrella dance in the second act given by Rastus Touton.

The play brought forth much applause and appraisal and they were urged to repeat it at an early date.

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. McGlawn have returned from Town Creek, Ala., where Mr. McGlawn, presiding elder of the district, presided at the District Conference of the Methodist Church held there.

Mrs. J. N. Rike, of Trinity, who has been visiting friends in Decatur for the past week, will leave Monday for her home.

Mrs. J. D. Wyker entertained the D. A. B. delightfully on the afternoon of April 6th. After the devotional exercises led by Mrs. Godbey, minutes read and business disposed of, the election of officers followed. Mrs. Brentz Pruitt, president; Mrs. J. D. Wyker, vice president; Mrs. W. C. Bailey, recording secretary; Mrs. L. A. Neil, corresponding secretary; Miss Ruth Banks, treasurer; Mrs. W. E. Crawford, register; Mrs. R. B. Courter, historian; Mrs. J. H. Donnell, chaplain. A program of unusual interest was given.

Mrs. Louis Hobart reading a most interesting paper on the "Romance of the early days of Alabama" and Mrs. Jno. Donnell giving a history of the most mooted question in American history, the "Michiganburg Declaration." At the conclusion of the program a card party was planned to take place soon after Easter for the benefit of the D. A. R. education fund. Mrs. W. E. Crawford, chairman. Mrs. Wyker, assisted by Mrs. LeRoy McIntyre served dainty refreshments.

LIBRARY ASSOCIATION TO MEET.

The Library Association will meet Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Carnegie Library, the public is invited to attend this meeting, especially the club women of the two towns.

MRS. MULLEN ENTERTAINS.

Mrs. H. W. Mullen gave a delightful party for her daughter, Mildred, this afternoon, celebrating her tenth birthday anniversary. The color scheme, pink and white, was carried out in the decorations with cut flowers and crepe paper and the refreshments, ice cream and cake, were also pink and white. Games, music and contests were the features of amusement and were very much enjoyed by the following friends: Mildred Mullen, Margaret Hawk, Edna Johnson, Edward Goforth, Thomas and Robert Masterson, Gladys Sandusky, Anna Dell Coolidge, Ray Smith, Roy McKnight, Sally and Ruth McKnight, Kathleen, Mary Louise and Cornelia Otte, George and James Geisen, Wilba Moore, Carl Swanson, Jr., Anna Grace Hamlin, Louise Feyerabend, Caroline Mainard, William Mullen, Madeline and Lola Mullen, Elizabeth Simrell, Charlie Kullman, Martha and Virginia Reynolds, Lucille Loveless and Evelyn McClure.

Mrs. Mullen was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. Carl Swanson, Mrs. C. N. McKnight and Miss Myrtle Coolidge. The honoree was showered with pretty presents and all wished her many happy returns of the day.

Mrs. E. S. Johnson and Mrs. Hence McDougald have returned from a few days visit to Birmingham.

IN MEMORY OF

MRS. WM. HARVEY
At a meeting of the Daughters of the American Revolution held on April 6 at the residence of Mrs. Jno. D. Wyker, fitting resolutions were passed on the death of Mrs. William Harvey. The resolutions were read by Mrs. D. C. Almon and placed on the minutes of Stephens chapter.

Miss Clara Berry Hunt is spending the week-end with Miss Katherine Glenn at Glenn Farm.

Misses Mildred Byars and Sadama Smith are spending the week-end with Miss Alma Wilson in Hartselle.

Mrs. Guy Blackwell has returned from Birmingham where she spent the winter months with her daughter, Mrs. Ed Warren.

Miss John Connor left this week for her home in New York after a ten days' visit to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Johnson.

Mrs. J. W. Cobb, who has been the guest of her mother, Mrs. Samuel Blackwell, left this morning for Prattville, Ala.

Mr. and Mrs. John F. Lovin have returned home after a visit to Hartselle.

Mrs. B. F. Holmes, Mrs. J. W. Clifton and Mrs. Foster Pointer attended the Field Day exercises in Hartselle Friday.

Miss Lillian Raney is reported ill at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Raney.

Mrs. R. M. Winton, Mrs. C. C. Pfaff, Miss Mildred Byars and Miss Ethel Mae Hatchett spent Friday in Hartselle.

Mrs. W. R. Shelton is with relatives at Columbia, Tenn., and has improved in health to a marked degree during the past week. She expects to return home next week.

Misses Elizabeth Wallace and Florence Rundle, delegates from the Christian Endeavor Society of the First Presbyterian Church, are in Athens for the week-end attending the North Alabama Christian Endeavor Association.

Miss Mildred Goodrich, of Anniston, while attending the Library Association here, will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Whitman.

Mrs. Eugene Rainey is quite ill at her home on Oak street.

Misses Elizabeth Wallace, Gertrude Griffin and Florence Rundle left Thursday afternoon for Athens as delegates for the Christian Endeavor of the First Presbyterian.

Congress Declines To Spend 30 Cents

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, April 8.—Congress refused this afternoon to appropriate 30 cents to enforce the civil service law. Representative Connally, Democrat of Texas, offered an amendment to a pending appropriation bill, making an appropriation of 30 cents for the enforcement of the civil service statutes.

The Republicans, incensed by recent attacks on the administration, buried the amendment under a chorus of "no's" without debate.

Chinese Superstition

In some parts of China two coins are put into the sleeve of the dead and are then shaken out, to test his satisfaction, or the reverse, at the arrangements made for his funeral and interment. If the coin falls with the side upward, it is taken as a sign of approval; if not, as a sign that something has been omitted.

If "cleanliness is next to godliness," Jumbo, who resides at Indore, India, is rather a religious animal. He takes a bath every Saturday, just the same as many Americans do. This "bath scene" is one of many odd sights witnessed by the Prince of Wales during his recent tour of India.

charged. The association simply puts the facts before the merchants.

As to the Rating

It was explained that there were "good," "medium," "slow pay," and "Y" ratings—the latter meaning "require cash," but that no so-called black list should be kept or printed. The case of a man who, while in Birmingham, did not pay his debts was cited as that man came back to the Magic City as a "debt collector," and flourished like a green bay tree until found out. Such men, according to the speaker, generally advocated the publication of the names of bad pay people but that such methods bordered in blackmail and were to be discouraged, as not giving sufficient consideration to the claims and dignity of human beings. It was explained that 300,000 credit ratings were carried in Birmingham and that 23 people were constantly employed by the credit association. Every consideration, it was declared, was taken into account in rating people and that under no circumstances should a record be made against people out of employment or sick, but only a notation saying "call the office." The speaker advised that all people who extended credit, doctors and dentists as well as merchants, should have a unified record as to available people to credit. It was advised that people would come to value the association record of their standing and would co-operate in getting their record straight and keeping it so.

Jonathan S. Ford Dies at His Home

Jonathan S. Ford died yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock at his residence, 413 Grove street, Decatur. Funeral services will be conducted this afternoon at 4 o'clock by Rev. C. C. Davison, pastor of the Decatur Baptist church, from the residence. Interment will be made here.

A FRIEND IN NEED A FRIEND INDEED

Writes Mrs. Hardee Regarding
Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Los Angeles, Calif.—"I must tell you that I am a true friend to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have taken it off and on for twenty years and it has helped me change from a delicate girl to a stout, healthy woman. When I was married I was sick all the time until I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was in bed much of my time with pains and had to have the doctor every month. One day I found a little book in my yard in Guthrie, Oklahoma, and I read it through and got the medicine—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—and took eight bottles and used the Sanative Wash. I at once began to get stronger. I have got many women to take it just by telling them what it has done for me. I have a young sister whom it has helped in the same way it helped me. I want you to know that I am a 'friend indeed,' for you were a 'friend in need.'"

—Mrs. GEORGE HARDEE, 1043 Byram St., Los Angeles, California.

New York Letter

by Lucy Jeanne Price

NEW YORK, April 8.—Most boys would feel that they had achieved something in taking a trip from New York to Hamburg and return as stow-aways. But when they managed to make the trip on a floating zoo, there is something to thrill them all the rest of their lives, however long those lives may be. Harold Conway and Richard Gebhardt, 16 and 18 years of age, did just that, and no youths ever shone in a brighter spotlight among their crowd in consequence. On February 23, the boys hid in the hold of the steamer Wuerttemberg, just to steal a ride down the bay. They went to Hamburg, instead. Of course, they were found but the officers decided to bring them home again safely and let them polish brass all the way. And when the Wuerttemberg's cargo for the return trip proved to be 100 swans, 1,600 canaries, one eagle, 400 monkeys, 20 dogs, three bears and two elephants, the boys felt that life could offer little more in the line of excitement.

Ocean trips are not the only free ones to be had from New York starting points. The Interborough subway, according to figures presented to the transit commission, is losing $50 a day by slugs found in the new turnstiles, where nickels are expected to repose.

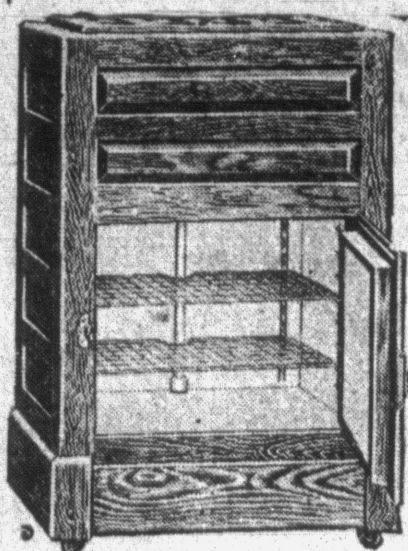

There is always romance in the actor who goes through his part for the enjoyment of an audience when he himself is suffering sorrow and pain. An outstanding example of this heroic appeal was given the other day when Fred Walton, clown at the Hippodrome, completed his act during an acute attack of heart trouble and collapsed on leaving the stage. He is 50 years old and his condition was found to be serious. He was taken immediately to the hospital while the audience was still laughing at his antics.

The much quoted cost of living is undoubtedly responsible for a line of business recently developed in this city—that of renting dresses by the day. Evening frocks, of all degrees of elaborateness, tailored suits, velvet afternoon frocks all hang on racks in various little stores around town, for which one may pay two dollars a day or so and make an impression of comparative wealth on such occasions as one has that yearning. The amazing thing is that the leading item is wedding dresses. Fancy the life of a rented wedding dress! A new love affair in a gown's life every day! And on Manhattan island there are no attics for grandchildren to explore, where wedding dresses are laid away in lavender scented trunks, so it's probably all right and a part of modern efficiency.

Council Endorses Walter F. Miller

TUSCUMBIA, April 8.—(Special)—The city council at its meeting this week unanimously adopted the following resolution endorsing the candidacy of Walter F. Miller, who is offering for secretary of state:

"Whereas, Walter F. Miller, a fellow townsman and editor of the Colbert County Reporter, is a candidate for the office of secretary of state of Alabama subject to the action of the Democratic primary election to be held in August, 1922, and

"Whereas, Mr. Miller is of good character and well qualified to fill the office to which he aspires, and

"Whereas, his friends and neighbors recognize his fitness for the office and are glad to express their recommendation and approval of his candidacy, and

"Whereas, Mr. Miller has had extended experience in legislative work and is finely suited for the position; Therefore be it resolved by the city council of Tuscumbia, Alabama, that we do hereby endorse Mr. Walter F. Miller, of Tuscumbia, for the nomination of secretary of state and respectfully submit his qualifications and ability for the same to the people of Alabama."

lice court. He finds that 90 per cent. of the disorderly conduct cases involve women. "The battling sex," he insists they ought to be called, if the experience of a police judge counts for anything.

It seems good to see DeWolf Hopper's name in electric lights once again. And here it is: "De Wolf Hopper's Funmakers" are to succeed Al Jolson's "Bohemia" at Jolson's Fifty-ninth street theatre, with a revue which will headline some more familiar and beloved names of a decade or so ago.

Twelve months of operatic choral training without cost to the student is what the Metropolitan Opera company is offering this spring to young singers of both sexes of New York and vicinity. Any young man or woman with a good voice and presence, plus a fair ability at reading music, is eligible.

The doctors who have been telling us that we ought to eat fruit to be healthy ought to be pleased at last year's showing in this part of the country. We received here in New York in 1921, 350,000,000 pounds of apples and 361,000,000 pounds of oranges, with an additional million pounds of grapefruit and lemons.

It is a comfort to hear that Lady Astor, who will land in New York this month, is not to talk about America or American affairs. She is going to talk to us, in three speeches she will make, about England and what she knows of political situations there. We could take a discussion of ourselves rather better from her because she is an American than from some of her predecessors on the platform here, but we like her restraint in keeping out of our troubles since she doesn't live among us.

Announce Dates For Farm Meetings

County Agent W. G. Johnson announces the following dates of meetings which will be held under the auspices of the Morgan county farm bureau:

Austinville, Monday evening, April 10, at 7:30.

Trinity, Tuesday evening, April 11, at 7:30.

Rural Grove, Wednesday evening, April 12, at 7:30.

Neel, Thursday evening, April 13, at 7:30.

The county agent urges a full attendance at these meetings, as matters of vital importance to the business men and farmers of the county will be discussed.

CHARGE MAINTAINED

MONTGOMERY, Ala., April 8.—(Special)—Until the public service commission has rendered a decision on the petition of the Mobile Light and Railroad company for permission to charge an eight-cent fare and two cents for transfers, it will be required to continue in effect the present seven-cent fare with free transfers. The commission today issued a temporary order maintaining the present fare until thorough consideration has been given to the evidence already submitted to the commission.

Please Call the Doctor

It makes no difference what time of day or night when you ask someone to "call the Doctor," you mean for that Doctor to come "Rightnow." And he always comes.

If you are the proud owner of a "Perfect Protection" Policy you need never worry about where the money is coming from to pay the doctor when he sends you his bill.
